The story behind “And Can It Be That I Should Gain”

Charles Wesley’s “And Can it be” was written around 1738.
The hymn came about after Wesley had had a profound conversion experience .

He was convalescing in the home of John Bray, a poor mechanic, when he heard a voice saying, “In the name of Jesus of Nazareth, arise, and believe, and thou shalt be healed of all thy infirmities.”
Soon after this conversion experience, he wrote two hymns in celebration of the "amazing love" he had come to know: "Where Shall My Wondering Soul Begin?" as well as "And Can It Be that I Should Gain".

While it appears that no one is quite sure which hymn was written first, most current scholarship accepts Where shall my Wondering Soul Begin as the first hymn written by Charles after his conversion experience. No matter its place in the chronology of Wesley's output, "And Can It Be" has been and remains one of his most remarkable hymns, expressing like no other the rapturous joy of receiving salvation

The text of the hymn is fairly straightforward. Wesley opens with an exclamation, "And can it be that I should gain an interest in my Savior's blood!" These words are followed by a rhetorical question, "Died he for me — who caused his pain?" Both are typical of Charles's poetic style.

The first verse expresses wonder and amazement at the redemptive act of God and his offering of free grace to all, even those "who caused his pain." This wonder is further emphasized by the repeated phrase "For me" in lines three and four. In fact The imagery he uses for each verse is poignant and in each verse Wesley is expressing his wonder at Gods wonderous acts.

The hymn first appeared in John Wesley's 1739 hymnal, Hymns and Sacred Poems. Since its first publication, it has been included in most Methodist hymnals and in the hymnals of many other Protestant denominations.

5 verses in total
here are 1st & 5th

And can it be that I should gain
An int'rest in the Savior's blood?
Died He for me, who caused His pain?
For me, who Him to death pursued?
Amazing love! how can it be
That Thou, my God, shouldst die for me?
Amazing love! how can it be
That Thou, my God, shouldst die for
me?

No condemnation now I dread;
Jesus, and all in Him, is mine!
Alive in Him, my living Head,
And clothed in righteousness Divine,
Bold I approach the eternal throne,
And claim the crown, through Christ
my own.
Bold I approach the eternal throne,
And claim the crown, through Christ
my own
