THE PEACE

All too often we overlook the sharing of the peace and treat it as a time to catch up with our friends and ask how the last week has been etc. However, the Peace is steeped in meaning and is more than simply a social interlude. The Hebrew for Peace is Shalom. Shalom hints at a wholeness, at completion and at rest. This is not simply an end to hostilities or conflict, rather it is a life that is full of goodness and completely free from anxiety. The ancient Jewish conception has both a physical and a spiritual element. It is when every bill is paid and everyone in the family is healthy. It is having money in the bank and a job that is both fulfilling and well-paying. It is a relationship with God unsullied by sin, and being surrounded by friends who know and love you. It is internal, external, communal and Theological.

The present reality is that we are forgiven in Christ; we have union with God in Christ. And being united with Christ we are united with each other; having been forgiven we forgive. With our eternal future secure in the resurrected Christ we can face the harshest deprivations and persecutions with joy, confident that Christ will vindicate His people at His return in glory. So even in the face of loss and hardship, in response to the most vicious assault, even in the face of death, the Christian has been given access to peace. Peace which passes understanding, a peace that is given not as the world gives peace. A peace that is rooted in Christ Himself, and that is unassailable. So the Peace is much more than a general catchup.

The Peace is a powerful declaration of heaven on earth. It is declared in the hope of the resurrection even as it is already being fulfilled among us. It comes after the proclamation of the Gospel, before the fellowship of the Table. Here, between the two high points of our liturgical worship, we remember, declare and enact the peace which Jesus has given to us. We respond to the good news of Christ, receiving the peace He has accomplished for us on the Cross, and we are then able to come in the restored wholeness of the Peace of our Lord, who is Himself the Prince of Peace, to experience communion with God and his Church at the Table. Without the Peace—the peace which passes understanding won by the cross of Christ—there is no communion to be had. But Christ being infinite in love has looked upon us in our rebellion and taken into Himself all of our conflicts, has absorbed in Himself God's wrath towards sin. He has made peace by the blood of His cross. And he bids us to enter into His Peace and Rest.

Taken from Anglican Mission online Article by Lucas Damoff

Over the past few weeks I have noticed the time of peace getting noisier and noisier and as such, is becoming disruptive to our worship. I would like us to really reflect on what the Peace means and so would ask that the chatter be replaced by a simple and heartfelt peace be with you. Let us at this time begin to prepare ourselves to come to the table of the Lord and receive Communion. I look forward to our catch up at morning tea where we can share with each other the news of the past week. Remember, when Jesus entered the upper room He simply said peace be with you.
